

“I have a strong feeling that I am doing what God wants me to do at this time, which is especially rewarding as I get older.”

THOMAS KEUSENKOTHEN
ALEXIAN BROTHER

Some of God's gifts make Brother Thomas Keusenkothen feel particularly alive. A drive along the California coastline, a spirited game of tennis or an intense game of chess. But ever since he was a boy, Brother Tom has believed his earthly life is just practice for what comes later. To prepare for what lay ahead, he committed his life to serving others and became an Alexian Brother at age 22. Initially, he had one obstacle to overcome. Brother Tom came from a family of 11 kids. So, forgoing the idea of his own family was a tough decision. But today Brother Tom belongs to another kind of family. In it, Brothers share the same commitment to upholding the dignity of human life. For Brother Tom and his kin, it's a family that feels like home.
